

Meet the Faces

1 | 3

- How does Angela use her knowledge of chemistry?

- What is applied science?

- Why does Angela say scientists have to communicate well?

- What does Arthur do?

- Why does Arthur think apprenticeships are so important?

- What attracted Carmel to the cosmetics industry?

- What did Carmel find disappointing in her day-to-day work in industry?

- Why does Deirdre think it's important to work with consumers?

- Which aspects of science does Deirdre use in her current job?

- Which other nationalities does Deirdre work with?

- Why does Deirdre like the industry?

Meet the Faces

2 | 3

- Why does Deirdre say scientists need business acumen?

- Why does Chris Flower have to communicate with the public and why can it be a challenge?

- What does Chris find exciting about what he does?

- What mixture of specialties is there in the staff in Graham's department?

- What does Graham love about working in research?

- How does Graham's company analyse the effectiveness of deodorants?

- What is microbiology and why does Joan say it is important in the cosmetics industry?

- What did Joan think she would do for a living when she was 15?

- Which subjects is Joan glad she studied at school?

- What mixture of staff does Kumar work with?

Meet the Faces

3 | 3

- Why is it important that Kumar is aware of what fashion designers are doing?

- Why does Kumar think the UK needs to concentrate on being innovative?

- Which A-levels would you need to work in Kumar's department?

- How does Mike Brown say the use of titanium dioxide in sunscreens came about?

- How has scientific research changed the way sunscreens are formulated?

- What does Mike think are the most exciting aspects of his job?

- Which skills are needed to do Mike's job?

- What did Mike think he would do for a living when he was at school?

- What science does Sarah use in her job as a celebrity make-up artist?

- What does Sarah wish she had studied more at school?

